Summary An automobile liability insurance policy must provide liability coverage for motor vehicles rented in the U.S or Canada by a person insured under the policy.
Payments from applicable coverage provided will be made in the following order of priority:
(A) from a policy or coverage purchased by the operator from the person who has the vehicle available for rent;
(B) from a policy or coverage covering the operator of a rented vehicle but not purchased from the person who has the vehicle available for rent; and
(C) from a policy or coverage of the person who has the vehicle available for rent.

Summary The public liability insurance or the obligation of a self-insured owner pursuant to this section is primary coverage to any other available liability insurance coverage that is available and applicable for any damages and injury caused by a renter unless… It is disclosed in the rental agreement to the renter that either (1) the owner does not extend any of its motor vehicle financial responsibility or provide public liability insurance coverage to the renter, or (2) The renter purchased public liability insurance from the owner that provides coverage.

Case Law Uyleman v. D.S. Rentco, 981 P.2d 1081 (1999) Statutory financial obligation imposed on car rental agency to respond in damages in amount of $15,000 for injuries caused by renters or additional authorized drivers, which served as primary coverage to any other available insurance, created situation in which rental car agency served purpose of insurer.
Car rental agency occupies position of guarantor, not insurer, with respect to injuries to third parties when renter breaches rental contract, and thus may seek indemnification for payments to third parties.

Summary
If policy is issued to a person in the business of selling, repairing, servicing, delivering, testing, road testing, parking, or storing motor vehicles and the car is operated by any person not in such business, the policy is excess.

(b) Where two or more policies apply to the same loss, and one policy affords coverage to a named insured engaged in the business of renting or leasing motor vehicles without operators, it shall be presumed that the insurance afforded by that policy to a person other than the named insured or his or her agent or employee, shall be excess over any other valid insurance. This shall apply only if, at the time of the loss, the involved motor vehicle either: (1) Qualifies as a "commercial vehicle" as that term is used in Section 260 of the Vehicle Code.

(2) Has been leased for a term of six months or longer.

(d) Except as provided in subdivisions (a), (b), and (c), where two or more policies affording valid and collectible liability insurance apply to the same motor vehicle or vehicles in an occurrence out of which a liability loss shall arise, it shall be conclusively presumed that the insurance afforded by that policy in which the motor vehicle is described or rated as an owned automobile shall be primary and the insurance afforded by any other policy or policies shall be excess.

Mercury Casualty v. Hertz Corp, 59 Cal.App. 4th 414, 69 Cal. Rptr. 2d 9 (1997). Held that plaintiff's policy was primary, even though defendant was self-insured as the owner of the car. Ins. Code, § 11580.9, subd. (d), did not apply in this case to determine whose liability was primary. Neither plaintiff's policy nor defendant's certificate of self-insurance "described or rated" the rented vehicle. Defendant did not provide liability protection for the insured. The rental agreement made clear that she was solely responsible for obtaining her own liability protection. Thus, the agreement did not constitute a contract of insurance and could not be read in conjunction with defendant's certificate of self-insurance for purposes of the statute.

Enterprise Rent-A-Car Co. v. Workman's Auto Insurance Co., 58 Cal. App. 4th 1543, 68 Cal. Rptr. 2d 725 (1997). The rental car company's insurance deposit did not rate nor describe the vehicle and the rental agreement did not provide insurance. Driver's insurance company provided primary coverage for its insured in the underlying third party action, and that respondent car rental company provided secondary coverage.

United States Fidelity & Gaur. Co. v. Budget Rent-A-Car, 842 P.2d 208 (1992). Because Budget's agreement did not provide its coverage would be excess if other insurance applied, and because every automobile owner was required to carry liability insurance coverage, Budget was primary insurer.

Allstate v. Avis Rent-A-Car, 947 P.2d 341 (1997). If there are competing excess clauses in insurance policies, the actual loss is shared between the insurers on a co-primary basis, and public policy required apportionment on an equal basis up to the policy limits of each policy.

Requires owners of rental cars to "carry or cause to be carried" a minimum amount of liability insurance for a driver's negligence in operating a rental car. If the owner fails to do so, it is jointly and severally liable with the renter for any damages caused by the renter's negligence. Whenever it appears that the owner has provided or caused to be provided insurance covering the renter, the judge or court shall dismiss, as to the owner, the action brought under this section.

State Farm Mutual Auto. Ins. Co. v. Clarendon Nat. Ins. Co., 604 A.2d 384 (1992). Primary responsibility for providing liability insurance rests with owner. The possible applications of DE ST TI 21 s 6102 can be made to rental v. loan vehicle situations. Summary
The valid and collectible liability insurance or personal injury protection insurance providing coverage for the lessor of a motor vehicle for rent or lease is primary unless otherwise stated in at least 10-point type on the face of the rental or lease agreement. Such insurance is primary for the limits of liability and personal injury protection coverage.

Case Law
FL ST s 627.7263, permits lessors to shift the burden of providing primary insurance coverage for leased vehicles to lessees. However, to shift the burden, the rental agreements must inform the "lessee of the provisions of subsection (1) . . ." In this present case, lessee's failure to name his insurance carrier in a car rental agreement did not invalidate a risk-shifting provision because the provision complied with statute and the failure to include the name did not invalidate the provision.

Summary

Any person who rents motor vehicles from a U-drive-it owner is required to provide his own insurance, and insurance companies authorized to issue automobile policies in this state shall be required to provide "spot" insurance, which shall be purchased by such person before the U-drive-it owner shall be authorized to turn a motor vehicle over to such person.

Case Law

Jordan v. Spirit Rent-A-Car, 252 Ga. App. 117, 555 SE.2d 734 (2001). U-drive-it car rental companies are not exempt from their duty to insure cars they own, but they enjoy special treatment in terms of priority of coverage on cars rented to the public. Under GA ST 40-9-102, the liability insurance coverage the renter provides is the primary liability coverage in the case of liability arising from the use of the rental car; the U-drive-it owner's liability insurance coverage is then secondary or excess.

Zurich American Ins. Co. v. General Car & Truck Leasing System, Inc., 574 SE2d 914 (2002). Case Law
Premier Ins. Co. v. Empire Fire & Marine Ins. Co, 2002 WL 58465 (2002). Like all owners of registered motor vehicles, car rental agencies are required by statute (MA ST 90 s 34A), to provide compulsory bodily injury insurance on rental vehicles they own. The statute expressly requires the policy to provide coverage where, the vehicle is being operated by another person with the insured’s express or implied consent. Court held that permitting the registered owner of a vehicle to avoid primary responsibility for compulsory bodily injury coverage via a super escape or composite escape-excess clause was inconsistent with the statutory scheme and violated public policy.

Alamo Rent-A-Car v. Matchem, 2000 WL 16763 (Suffolk Sup. Ct. 1999) An escape clause in a garage policy does not violate public policy, however; as automobile rental agencies are involved, an escape clause is inconsistent with statute violates public policy. Alamo could not declare itself the insurer of last resort, but is instead the primary insurer with respect to liability losses caused by the rental vehicles it owned.

This case points out that “liability” insurance covers whomever may be construed as an “insured” under the terms of the policy and permission is relevant in determining whether the acts of the driver are insured by the policy. However, “collision” insurance is basically a contract of indemnity, which merely covers physical damage to a specific insured vehicle, irrespective of who is driving.

Summary
Owner must have insurance which insures against loss from the liability imposed by law upon such owner for damages due to bodily injury or death suffered by any person other than the owner's employee, or a person in the vehicle as a driver or occupant, arising out of the negligent maintenance, use or operation of the motor vehicle.

Case Law
Ambrosio v. Affordable Auto Rental, 704 A.2d 572 (1998). Contradictory provisions in lessor and lessee's policies had effect of canceling each other out, making each party's primary coverage, subject to limits.

Kattoura v. Patel, 619 A.2d 1031 (1993). Secondary liability provision in the rental agreement supplies the minimum statutory insurance requirement but only in an excess capacity when renter has other collectible primary insurance.

Robinson v. Coia, 869 A.2d 878 (2005) Avis's coverage by operation of contract and statute (memorialized in the rental agreement) and the renter's "other insurance" clause were each, by their terms, "excess" to the other, the two should be treated as co-primary.

An automobile lessor's compliance with statutory obligation to obtain policy of automobile liability insurance does not require lessor's policy or self-insurance to be primary in respect of a lessee's liability to third parties.

Case Law
Cordova v. Wolfel, 120 N.M. 557, 903 P.2d 1390 (1995). A vehicle lessor is liable for the negligence of a lessee or a lessee's permittee only to the extent that a statute, administrative regulation, or agreement of the parties imposes such liability. Currently, there is no common law basis for imposing upon a bailor liability for a bailee's negligent operation of a bailed vehicle. Based solely on the inapplicability of the MFRA to self-insured vehicles, insurance protection was not afforded to an unauthorized driver of a self-insured rental vehicle.

Case Law
When a vehicle owned by a licensed automobile dealer is loaned without a fee to a person for demonstration purposes, as a temporary substitute for that person's vehicle while it is being serviced or repaired, as a promotional courtesy vehicle or as a courtesy vehicle, primary insurance or self-insurance coverage shall be provided by the motor vehicle insurer providing coverage to the person using the demonstration vehicle, temporary substitute vehicle, promotional courtesy vehicle or a courtesy vehicle, and coverage provided by the dealer or the dealer's insurer applies only as excess coverage.

Summary
Provides that lessee is not liable for damages except for in certain circumstances. Transfers the responsibility of damage repair costs from the rental company to the consumer.

Case Law

Car rental company was required to provide primary coverage up to the minimum statutory limits. To require driver to contribute before defendant car rental company had paid up to the statutory minimum would allow defendant car rental company to circumvent the minimum liability insurance limits required by the state. The indemnification provisions of the rental contract, which allow the rental agency to disclaim liability, including the minimum statutory amount, are void and unenforceable.

NY VEH & TRAF s 370

The business of renting or leasing rental vehicles shall be subject to the provisions of this section and shall secure a policy of insurance for the liability limits required.

ELRAC, Inc. v. Ward, 96 N.Y.2d 58, 748 N.E.2d 1, (2001). Self-insured rental company could not seek indemnification from renters to extent that damage fell below required minimum insurance. However, indemnification clause of rental contract was enforceable as to amounts exceeding statutory minimums.

It shall be unlawful to engage in the business of renting or leasing motor vehicles to the public for operation by the rentee or lessee unless such business has secured insurance for his own liability and that of his rentee or lessee, in the minimum liability limits.

Case Law
Hertz Corp. v. New South Ins. Co., 497 SE.2d 448 (1998). The rental agreement extends only to the minimum limits required by North Carolina law and it provides only secondary coverage where other valid and collectible insurance exists.

Jeffery v. Snappy Car Rental, 493 SE.2d 767 (1997) Our Supreme Court has “held that this statute (Financial Responsibility Act) is satisfied if the terms of the self-insured’s policy exclude coverage in the event the driver of a vehicle is covered under some other policy for the minimum amount of liability coverage required by law.”

Integon Indem. Corp. v. Universal Underwriters Ins. Co., 507 S.E.2d 66 (1998) Where the rental car driver was in an accident, the fleet insurer was partially liable despite the driver's personal coverage. The fleet insurer provided coverage required by law, and the driver was an individual required by law to be insured. The appellate court found that both insurers were liable in pro rata shares up to the minimum limits required by law for claims arising out of the accident at issue.

Summary

When a person is driving a automobile with the express permission of a motor vehicle dealer, the driver’s policy is primary. This section does not apply in situations where there is a lease charge.

Owner of vehicle may submit a valid binding lease contract between the owner and renter wherein it is agreed that the renter accepts responsibility for loss from any liability imposed by law.

Case Law

is imposed upon self-insured owners of for-rent vehicles only when person operating vehicle has owner’s permission to do so. Self-insured owner of for-rent vehicle was not subject to joint and several liability for damages arising out of accident where nonpermissive and unauthorized driver was operating for-rent vehicle. Fact that statute provides for self-insured owner of for-rent vehicles to be jointly and severally liable with any person operating vehicle for any damages caused by negligence of any person operating vehicle by or with permission of insured did not mean that self-insured owner of for-rent vehicles had limitless liability; rather, liability was limited by statute.

OK ST T. 47 s 8-101

It shall be unlawful for the owner of any motor vehicle engaged in the business of renting motor vehicles without drivers to rent a motor vehicle without a driver otherwise than as a part of a bona fide transaction involving the sale of such motor vehicle, unless he has previously notified the Department of the intention to so rent such vehicle and has given proof of financial responsibility. The Department shall cancel the registration of any motor vehicle rented without a driver whenever the Department ascertains that the owner has failed or is unable to give and maintain such proof of financial responsibility. Said policy or policies need not cover any liability incurred by the renter of any vehicle to any passenger in such vehicle.

When any suit or action is brought against the owner of a for-rent motor vehicle upon a liability under this title, it shall be the duty of the judge of the court before whom the case is pending to cause a preliminary hearing to be had, for the purpose of determining whether the owner has obtained and there is in full force and effect, a policy or policies of insurance covering the person operating the vehicle under a rental agreement. When it appears that the owner has obtained such policy or policies and that the same are in full force and effect, the judge or magistrate before whom such action is pending shall dismiss the action as to the owner of the motor vehicle.

Dealer’s garage liability policy provides primary coverage of an auto driven by a prospective customer.

Southern Home Ins. Co. v. Burdette’s Leasing Service, Inc., 268 S.C. 472, 234 S.E.2d 870 (1977). Construing the Motor Vehicle Financial Responsibility Act, self-insured lessor of rental automobiles must provide coverage for persons using its rental automobile with its express or implied consent. Any effort on the part of the rental company to relieve itself of a liability imposed by law is void, at least insofar as an injured third party’s claim is concerned.

Dorman v. Allstate Ins. Co., 504 S.E.2d 127 (S.C.App., 1998) Car lessee was not entitled to grant permission to spouse who was not listed as an authorized driver on the rental contract, and, thus, lessee’s automobile insurance policy provided no collision coverage for rental vehicle driven by spouse; policy defined covered substitute vehicles to include nonowned vehicle used with permission of the owner.

General Acc. Ins. Co. v. Safeco Ins. Companies, 443 S.E.2d 813 (1994) Four insurance companies sought declaration of extent of their liability for damages arising from injuries resulting when rental car struck pedestrian. The Court found coverage under all four policies.
declared rental car’s insurer primary carrier and other insurers excess carriers.

Stover v. Critchfield, 510 N.W.2d 681 (1994). The negligence of an agent may be imputed to a principal; however, where the relationship is that of a bailor and bailee, the “general rule is that a bailor is not liable to third persons for their injuries resulting from the bailee’s negligent use of the property bailed.” Court found no existing basis to impose vicarious liability on the owner of a vehicle based on financial responsibility laws.

Auto Owners Ins. Co. v. Enterprise Rent-A-Car, 663 N.W.2d 208 (2003) Automobile insurer of the operator of a rental car that was involved in a collision brought a declaratory judgment action to determine whether it or the self-insured automobile rental company had the duty to provide primary coverage on the rental car. The Supreme Court held that the self-insured automobile rental company, rather than the operator’s automobile insurer, had duty to provide primary liability coverage up to mandatory minimum amounts on the rental vehicle.

A rental company shall provide its renters with primary coverage meeting the requirements of the Financial Responsibility of Motor Vehicle Owners and Operators Act, unless there is other valid or collectible insurance coverage.

Case Law
Chambers v. Agency Rent-A-Car, 878 P.2d 1164 (1994). Self-insured rent-a-car company was primarily responsible for claims that arose from an accident that involved a vehicle owned by the self-insured and driven by the renter. The self-insured was responsible for the statutory amount of benefits.

Li v. Zhang, --- P.3d ----, 2005 WL 1313126 (Utah App.,2005) Statute which requires an automobile rental company to provide its renters with primary coverage, unless there is other valid or collectible insurance coverage, does not relieve lessors of obligation to provide minimum insurance under the Financial Responsibility of Motor Vehicle Owners and Operators Act and only allows lessors to structure their required coverage as secondary or excess to other available coverage when other valid and collectible coverage exists; if the legislature had intended an escape clause for lessors, the statute would not have used the word "primary."

Vermont's financial responsibility law. No owner of an automobile may permit the operation of the vehicle upon the highways of the state without having in effect an automobile liability policy or bond, in the amount specified in the statute and covering persons killed or injured in an accident and property damage.

Case Law
Champlain Casualty Co. v. Agency Rent-A-Car, 168 VT 91, 716 A.2d 810 (1998). Renter’s responsibility is one imposed by law; its contractual responsibility is to comply with the requirements of the law and no more. Nothing in VT’s financial responsibility and compulsory insurance laws requires that the insurance requirements imposed be primary with respect to other available insurance. Court determined that the rental agreement, which specifically required the renter to obtain his own insurance, determined the obligations between the parties and established the renter’s personal insurance as primary.
